Washington Irving High School

Dedication

As the history of Washington Irving High School draws to a close, it is only fitting and proper that we, the class of '55, dedicate this yearbook to the spirit of W. I.

This spirit, which we have heard echoed in its halls and classrooms, defended at its games and contests, cheered from the stands, and honored in its assemblies, holds many meanings to us of W. I.

To us it is the warm and intimate relationship that exists between the faculty and students, their mutual respect and desire to help each other; it is the feeling of friendship and unity in the classrooms, at the games, and at all common efforts and productions; it is the fondness and loyalty of the students for their school, the regret and sadness with which they finally leave it; it is, perhaps, best seen at graduation in their emergence from carefree boys and girls to open-minded and alert young men and women who are on the way to becoming mature and responsible citizens of their community and country.

So it is that, though the role of Washington Irving as the high school of Tarrytown may come to an end, its spirit and traditions of courtesy, loyalty, good sportsmanship, cooperation, and the desire and will to learn and grow will continue to live in the new school and enable it to continue in the best tradition of W. I.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

HERALD TRIBUNE YOUTH FORUM W.I.H.S. 1951

Aside from the regular program and activities, the school, teachers, and parents try to guide and broaden the interests of the students in various other ways.

The P. T. A. tries "to promote the welfare of children and youth in the school, community, and home." This year, news letters concerning P. T. A. activities were introduced, and a School Board Candidate Meeting was formed to acquaint the public with the views of those candidates running for office. A concrete example of the work of the P. T. A. is the scholarship which is awarded each year to one or two deserving high school seniors.

Mr. Cushman, our guidance director, and Miss Spinelli are called upon each day to help the students with those problems relating to school and family life. Personal adjustment, schedule planning, vocational guidance, and helping the graduating senior find the right college or field of work are just a few of the duties that they perform to make school more meaningful and pleasant for the students of W. I.

Foreign exchange students from the Herald Tribune Forum, sponsored in W. I. by Miss Wright, acquainted the students with their countries and way of life.

At College Night the students have the opportunity to learn about the colleges, universities, and other schools they are interested in from their representatives. This year College Night was sponsored by five high schools with W. I. acting as host. More than forty schools were represented.

The General Organization which constitutes the student government of our school compiled a fine record of worthwhile activities and accomplishments under the leadership of Duncan Dempster, Charles Singleton, Jemma McGowan, and Carolyn Clary.

This year the G. O. attained a membership of 426. It joined the Westchester County Association of Student Councils and the National Association of Student Councils. Participating in County Government Day, Bob Pellaton of W. I. was elected governor. A major event was the Armistice Day and National Education Week assembly presented by the G. O. The Salvation Army Christmas Food Drive and the Polio Drive were supported enthusiastically by the student body. Other noticeable activities were the inter-class Track Meet, the G. O. dances, the chartering of buses for the games, and the distribution of handbooks to new students.

A great deal of work was accomplished through the Social Hour, Social Service, Inter-class Track Meet, Student Assembly, Handbook, Traffic, and Lost and Found Committees.

SENIORS

History

Seniors, Class of '55, we've had some wonderful times together these past six years, and though our days in W. I. will occasionally recall the bitter, embarrassing moments which we all experienced as part of growing up, time will soften all memories and we will remember those carefree, joyous days as precious moments which were ours for only a fleeting instant and which, though we live to be a hundred, will never be ours again.

Those seventh and eighth grade days were at times bewildering but always fun. Who can forget Miss Canfield's literature class, or those exciting trips to the Bronx Zoo and the Museum of Natural History which tried so hard the bus driver's nerves?

By the time we reached our freshman year, we nonchalantly walked down the halls with our books under one arm, stepped into class a second before the bell, no longer were frightened by the pep meetings, and didn't even bother to show our disdain for those babes from Pierson. As initiation approached, our self-assurance vanished and we became our old disgusting selves again. This was the year we explored Philipse Castle, and took that crazy trip to Bear Mountain on the dayliner.

Our sophomore year we felt we had arrived. With lots of noise and bustle we joined as many clubs as possible, wreaked our vengeance on the freshman, did our best to out yell the juniors at the games, visited the U. N. and the Metropolitan Museum of Art, held the Mistletoe Hop, our one and only magazine sale, and managed to pass our courses only by dint of sheer will power which made us stay home those balmy June days to cram.

Junior year we were members of the Varsity (some of us even on first string), graceful twirlers, admired cheerleaders, and upper class men. Our rings finally came and we displayed them proudly. The unparalleled success of "Arsenic and Old Lace" made us wonder if there was not some Barrymore or Gable among us. Oh, who of us would ever forget Mr. Hoskins and the window box, the curtain that wouldn't close, dear sweet Abbie and the rest? The year ended in a burst of glory as Blue Hawaii brought moonlight, romance, and the gleaming surf and beaches of Waikiki to W. I.

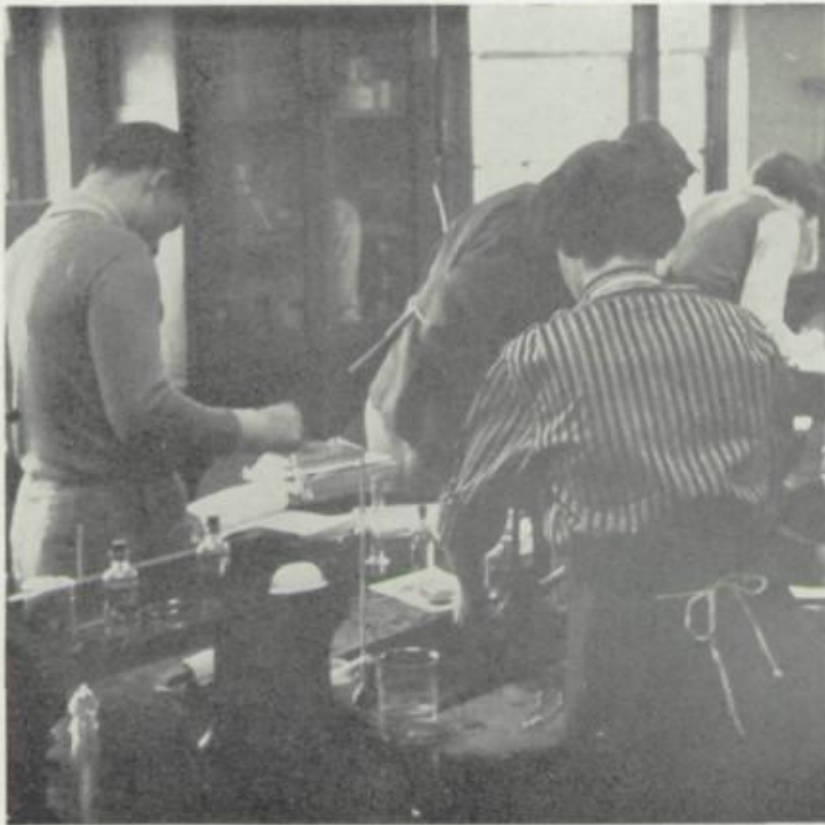

Our senior year found us the leaders of our school on the field, stage, club, and class room, not to mention Russ's and Pinkus's. Somehow it didn't all seem real, but the days sped on, we stumbled through English, History, Chemistry and the rest, spent hours filling out college forms, fulfilled the many duties and responsibilities of seniors and secretly envied the freshmen and sophomores. There were many parties, the senior play, and then with rapid succession, exams, class night, and finally graduation.

Pride and tears showed in the eyes of our parents as we walked down the aisles in our stately caps and gowns. We suddenly felt so young and inexperienced, and the thought of leaving W. I. and all the friends we loved so well made everything grow dim. But our confidence returned, we received our diplomas, and said goodbye to W. I. We left with a deep and strong belief in ourselves and in each other, our final gift from Washington Irving.

Miss Hahn — Advisor . . . friend . . . companion to us all.

"Double, double toil and trouble;
Fire burn, and cauldron bubble."

"Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife."

I am a senior! I'm a senior?

Go to Russ's? Why I've got to see Mr. Cushman, Miss Wright, Sunnyside, Alhambra, play practice, a meeting ... Now where did she go?

I cannot, just cannot fill out all these college forms!

Now what does Uncle Sam want with me?

BOOM! CRASH! I'm sorry, Mr. Gray, but I just can't seem to remember all these little details.

I don't think I'll ever be able to look at a Christmas card again.

When do I do my homework? Oh, you know, in between my extra-curricular activities.

Horsed around in gym, today. Will have to watch myself. I'm told this is what they call second childhood. I don't know what's come over this younger generation! They're so ill-mannered, rude, and seem to be getting smaller every year.

Spring, flowers in bloom, the most beautiful blue eyes, new floor for the jalopy ... Huh? Oh, I was just thinking over what you said, Miss Wright. Well-sniff-this is it-sniff sniff—I'm graduating-sob-just what I always wanted-gulp. Of course I'm happy WAAaaa!

The Class Song of '55

O tell me, what is this sadness that weighs so on my heart

A memory comes to haunt me, as we're about to part:

We laughed and learned together

Our mighty Hudson rolled.

And always her glorious sunsets the lofty hills will enfold.

We shared all each others' great triumphs; we loved our W. I.

We walked down her hallways together; and now we're saying goodbye.

An unknown future awaits us.

A magic day will arrive.

But often in mem'ry we'll stand here again, the class of '55

Carol Foreman

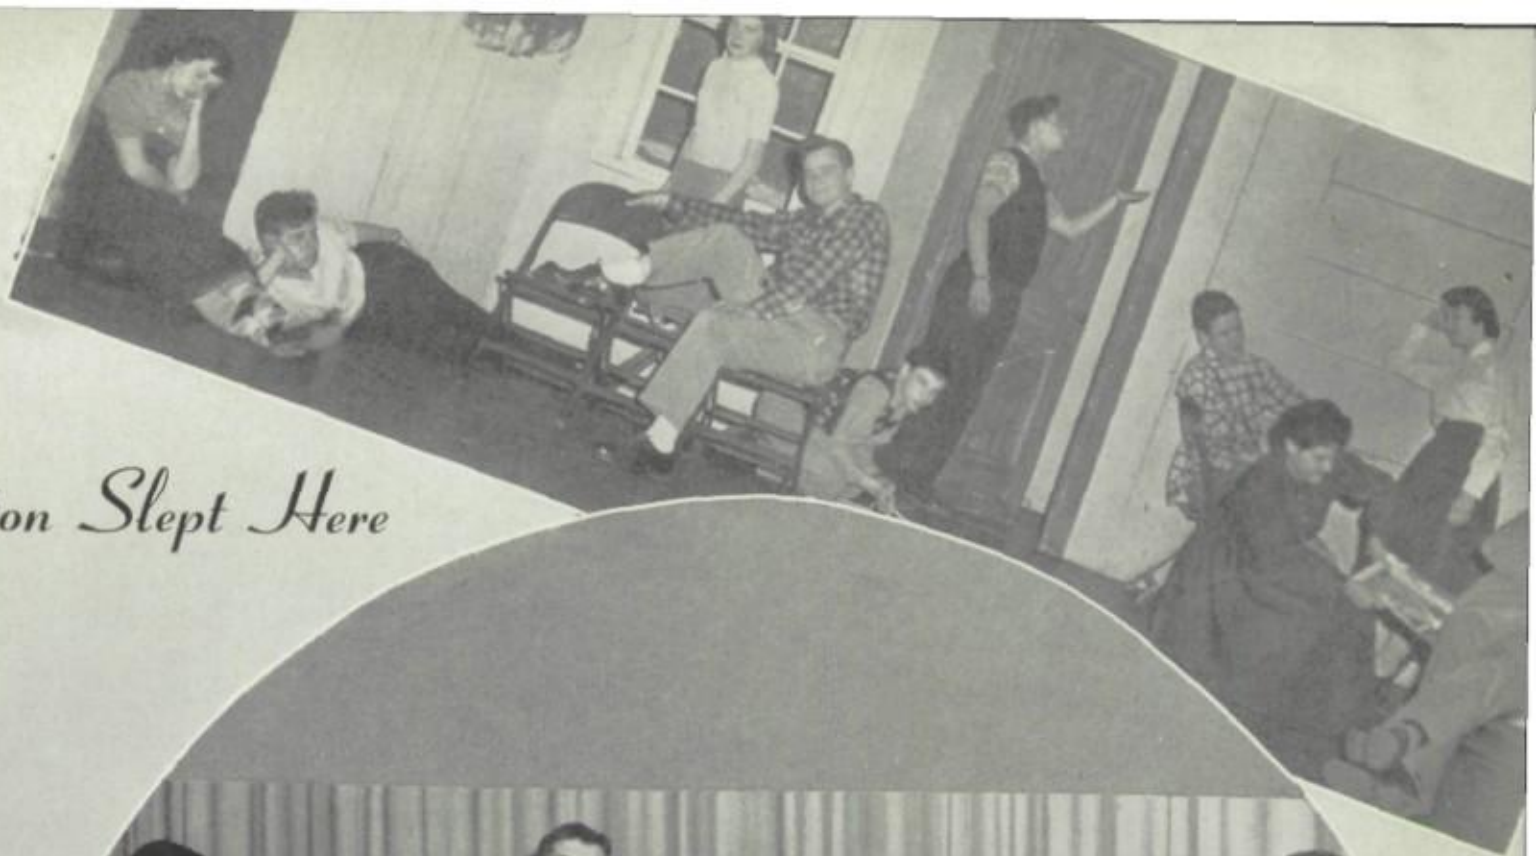

Arsenic and Old Lace

Opening night for "Arsenic and Old Lace" found us peeping excitedly between the curtains at a packed auditorium. Grease paint, powder, and bright lights, poorly concealed flushed, anxious faces. But the curtains opened, forgotten lines returned, props were miraculously in place and functioning, and the play was a tremendous success with only a broken banister and a curtain which wouldn't fall to blush about.

"George Washington Slept Here" with its impossible scenery and sound effects had the stage crew in a dither but brought the house down in gales of laughter.

A junior! Must act more sophisticated and mature... I'll show those seventh graders that their childish, maudlin antics don't bother me in the least.

AaaChuuu! Pardon my germs.

These days I feel much older than the others. I am withdrawing from all the frivolities of life. Only thus shall I find my true self.

Changed my style; I'm a hep cat now. Got took by Hi-Y. Real cool huh? Getting out on school night. Crazy man crazy, be bop, oop shoop!

Of course I don't have a nervous twitch in my finger. Oh, you like my ring?

Made the junior play. Romeo, Romeo, wherefore art thou Romeo? What part? Oh, I'm the bus boy...

I'm taking driving and I just love it, but poor Mr. Fitz gets all shook.

Player: I dare you to knock that banana off my shoulder.

But Mr. O'Toole...

The sonnet blues: Fret, sweat, yet forget sonnet. Be-set, get threat. Silhouette-bayonet-parapet-rivulet. Wet! Regret forget sonnet.

The Crimson of Washington Irving rolled to their fifth victory of the season Saturday afternoon, turning back the visiting Indians of Ossining, 33-7. The loss for the Indians snapped a three game winning streak, giving them a record of, 3-3 on the season now. The Crimson now possess a, 5-2 card with a single contest remaining on the schedule, it being against their arch-rivals the Headless Horsemen of North Tarrytown next Saturday at the Crimson Field.

ART

"Roundup" by Cheryl Ashburn

We are especially proud of the art group who meet every day after school to continue their painting. The whole village was thrilled by their beautiful paintings on the library windows at Christmas time. These scenes from the nativity, shown at the bottom of this page, were worked on by the entire class, with Bob Pellaton, Earl Carroll, Cheryl Ashburn, Eleanor Torhan, Barbara Clements, Virginia Brunner, Marilyn Wetzel, and Paula Gordon doing a major portion. Their fine work is in itself a tribute to Mr. Caivano, their instructor.

SHOP

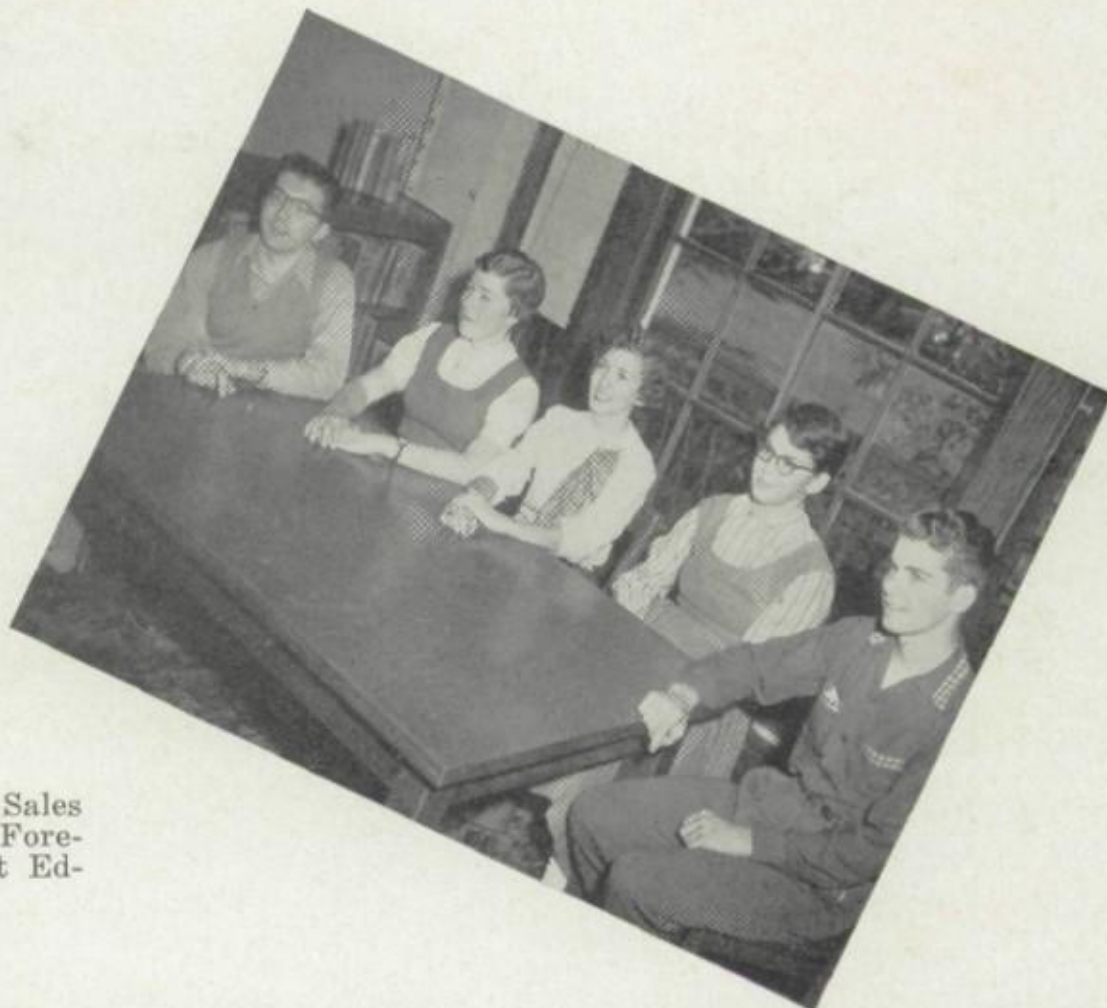

The annual exhibit of the industrial art classes astonished the rest of the school, as usual. The lamps, dishes, bowls, bureaus, shelves, model homes, and other pieces showed such expert craftsmanship that the student body could hardly believe that they had been made by amateurs and right here in W. I.

Alhambra Staff

Each year the task of publishing a yearbook presents a challenge to the seniors. Every evening when the rest of the school is empty and deserted, a light burns brightly in Room 207 where our weary editors Foreman, Wolter, and Carroll can still be found battling with both time and that battered old dummy which one day, if all goes right, will become, like Cinderella, the sparkling new Alhambra of '55. Our humblest thanks go to Miss Gates, our patient advisor, who "opened our eyes and showed us the way".

In view of all the emphasis placed upon the extra-curricular today, the Honor Society tries to promote scholarship and maintain the high standards of W. I. Among the functions of the Society are the induction of new members, ushering at the N. T.—W. I. game, and setting a good example for the rest of the school. In the spring the members take time out to go on a picnic and enjoy themselves. The officers are J. Wolter, C. Singleton, A. Paschen, and R. Hutcheson.

Honor Society

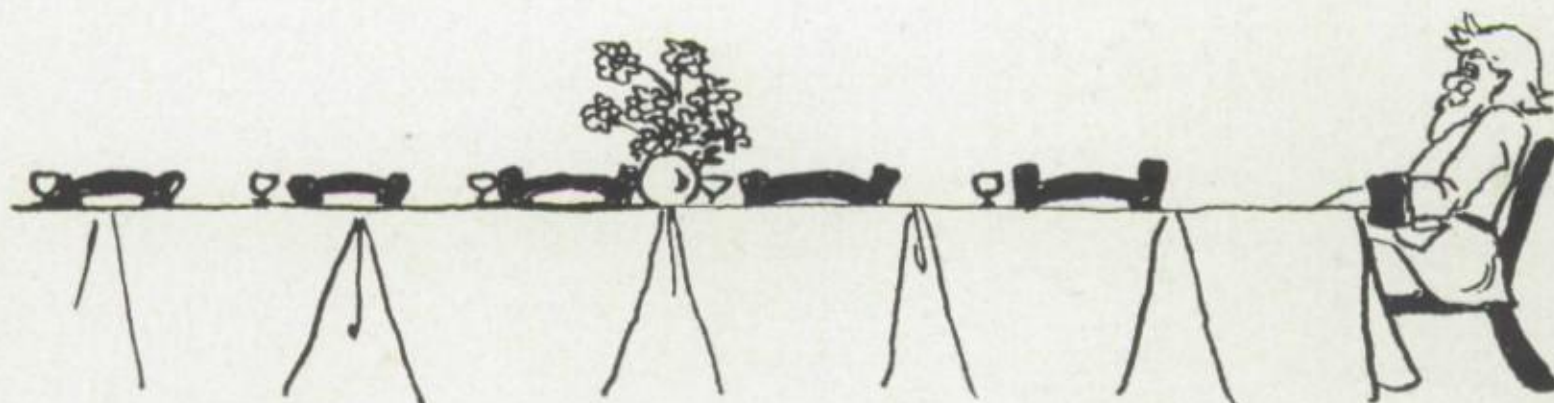

Although the Junior Red Cross is a comparatively newly organized group, its contributions have already won recognition in W. I. Led by Myra Goldberg, Anais Arslanian, Gwen Boyce, and Virginia Brunner, the J. R. C. has held its yearly drive, collected canned food and packaged gift boxes for overseas, donated to the international art exhibit, made tray favors for hospitals, helped decorate Montrose Hospital, and participated in the international Red Cross project.

Red Cross

The Senior Girls' Club tries to combine pleasure with service for the school and community. With this in mind, the club members, led by Joan Bronik, Marilyn Johnson, Paula Mangiacapra, and Rosemary Franzone, have acted as hostesses upon various occasions, served as guides during the open-house for parents, and entertained the exchange students from the Herald Tribune. The highlight of the year was their annual theatre trip to a Broadway play.

Sr. Girls' Club

After all the rigors, chills, and excitement of initiation, which is never overlooked in the Junior Girls' Club, the members settled down to become demure and helpful young ladies. Tray favors were made for the Red Cross and at Christmas the club went carolling to spread good cheer. Parties like the one on Valentine's Day brought the year to a successful end. The officers were Nancy Speight, Julia Twitty, Faith Lagana, and Frances Lagana.

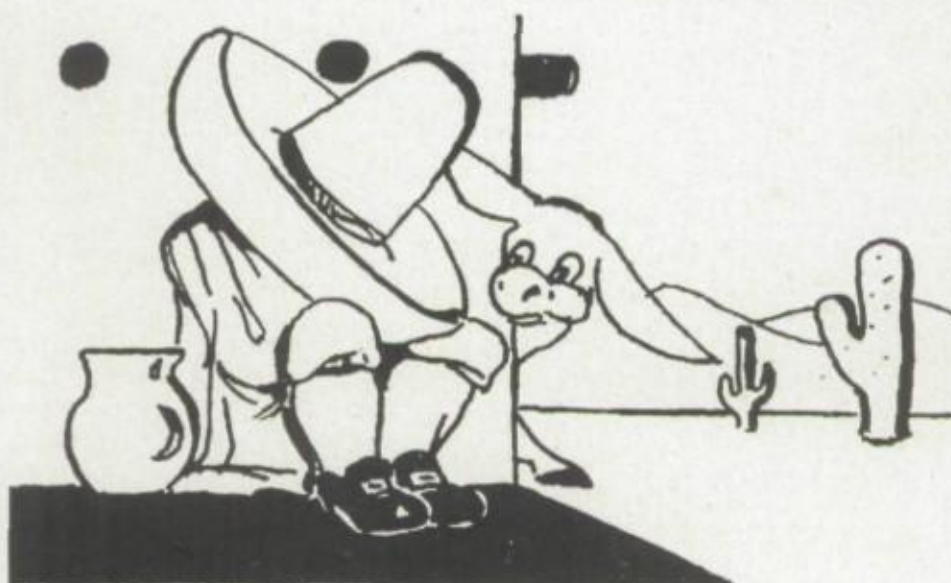

Jr. Girls' Club

The French Club has had informal, pleasant, and informative meetings where French conversation was held, idioms and customs were reviewed and discussed, and amusing games aimed at improving one's vocabulary were played. Two parties were given but most enjoyed by the club were the times when Miss Langlois related her experiences abroad and described the interesting places she had visited. The club was led by Evelyn Cohen, Ann Solomon, Ruth Hoffenberg and Lila Mays.

French Club

Spanish Club

An enthusiastic group invigorated with mucho espanol functioned under the leadership of Kenny Fink, Lila Mays, Betty Langle, and Deborah Avery. Though there was always fun a plenty, due emphasis was placed upon Spanish culture. The old year ended with a Christmas party and with the entrance of the Ano Nuevo, the club attended the Latin Banquet. In the spring a Pan-American display was prepared and the famous Spanish assembly was held.

The diligent worms are still at work on their great goal, constructing a reproduction of the famous Globe Theater. Time out, however, was taken to see a Broadway show. At the monthly meeting, while the worms nibbled and munched on refreshments, programs consisting of charades, reports, and discussions were held. All in all the worms, who were directed by Janet Goldberg, Ruth Anne Hoffenberg, Carole Vincent, Jeanne Vincent, and Lloyd Jacobs, had a very successful year.

Bookworms

Latin Club

The code of the Latin Club is that you receive from an organization as much as you put into it. With this in mind, the Club led by B. MacKinnon, T. Lawson, D. Hayn, and J. Fisher plunged wholeheartedly into the study of Roman customs and various other activities. Canned food and money were sent to the Salvation Army and Care, respectively; a lavish Roman Banquet was given for all the language clubs, and a trip was taken to see a Latin production.

Science Club

The Math Club tries to promote interest in mathematics through social and program activities. Two meetings were devoted to the study of the slide rule and sextant. At the Christmas party, everyone brought brain twisters to puzzle his fellow members. A guest speaker gave our mathematicians some more to think about but in the spring all departed for a gay un-mathematical picnic. The officers were Deborah Avery, James Slattery, and Cheryl Ashburn.

The Science Club is one of the oldest organizations in the school. It printed the first school newspaper and today has the responsibility of operating and repairing all the visual aid equipment which includes projectors, tape recorders, phonographs, and the lighting system in the auditorium. Led by Ira Guzik, John Paul Fiala, Gerald Logan, and Jerome Cooper, the club held a dance and took two trips to places of scientific interest.

Math Club

Crimson and Black

Within the last few years a junior high school paper was organized to cater to the interests of the younger members of W. I. If we were to visit Room 102, we would find the young ambitious reporters of the Crimson and Black busily arranging their newsprint. Under the capable direction of Nancy Eisen and Paul Lawrence, seven issues went to press this year. The paper participated in National Newspaper Week and won first prize in the junior high school division at the CSPA convention.

The Sunnyside reports the daily happenings in W. I. and all matters of timely interest. The articles range from club and class news and sports coverage to the new schools, the latest records and books, hobbies, and poems and stories written by the students themselves. As a member of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, improvement in the publications is constantly being sought by the editors, Bob Pellaton, Alix Paschen, and Todd Stewart.

W.I. Hi-Y

The Washington Irving Girls' Hi-Y had a year filled with fun and service. The girls sponsored the Victory Dance along with the other Hi-Y's, raised money for Care, held a dance for World Service, visited an orphanage, canvassed in two drives, gave to the Salvation Army, and presented a bill in White Plains. The club advisor and officers were Mrs. Mangiacapra, Louise Erickson, Frances Arbitrio, Joyce Cole, Carole Vincent, and Doris Adams.

The W. I. Boys' Hi-Y tries to build up the character and morals of its young men. This year they sent representatives to the Hi-Y convention at Camp Sloane, introduced a bill in White Plains, amazed their sister Hi-Y's by the success of their cake sale, and aided in the Polio drive. A gala picnic ended the year. The club was advised and directed by Mr. Farnham, Todd Stewart, Charlie Singleton, Jerry Eisen, Dennis Mathieson, and Tim Lawson.

Boys' Hi-Y

The Chess Club was formed this year to further the knowledge and enjoyment of chess among the students of W. I. The club holds meetings on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month and also meets informally on the first and third Fridays. At the meetings the members play and study the game of chess. The club plans to send teams to compete at other schools. The officers were Kent Van Wegen, William Gibson, and Bruce George.

Chess Club

Sleepy Hollow Hi-Y

The Sleepy Hollow Girls' Hi-Y achieved a fine record in service. Besides the Victory Dance and the drive for mentally retarded children, boxes of candy were sent to Sunshine Cottage, a quilt was made and raffled for World Service, and a bill requiring an eye test upon renewal of license was passed in White Plains and Albany. The club advisor and officers were Mrs. Fleming, Jeanne Fleming, Arlene Dalton, Kenny Fink, Rose Reasor, and Betty Langle.

DRAMATICS

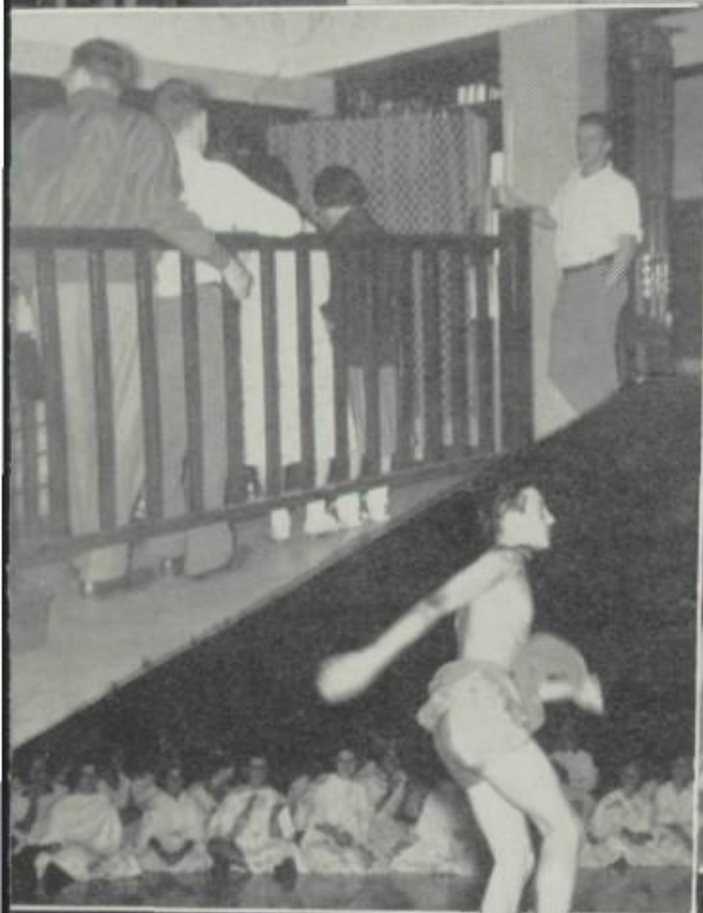

Dramatic Club

The Dramatic Club has undergone various revisions this year. Prospective members will no longer compete in try-outs to enter the club because all those who took an active part in the Junior play will be asked to join. Furthermore, the three one-act plays have been abandoned. They will be replaced by one or two plays which will be given during school assemblies. This year's officers were Diana Laird, Dick

White, Ann Blasi, Jemma McGowan, Murray Merl, and Gail Erickson.

Besides the productions of the Dramatic Club and the junior and senior classes, there are various other theatrical activities which are conducted by other organizations and clubs. They are often very successful as the following page illustrates.

A.A.

The A. A. coordinates all the athletic activities in which the students of W. I. take part and it tries to stimulate and encourage school spirit and good sportsmanship. Because things run so smoothly under their guidance, Scott Bearce, Ed Mayer, Alix Paschen, Joe Hudek, and Fran Arbitrio seldom receive the credit that is due to them for all the pleasure and enjoyment that their efforts have made possible.

G.A.A.

Not to be outdone by the boys, the G. A. A. promotes interest in athletics among the girls and supervises intramural athletic activities for which the girls turn out very enthusiastically both to defend the honor of their school and class, and just to have some good, wholesome fun. Led by Kenny Fink and Linda Hall, they have compiled a fine record and held a very satisfying season.

GIRLS' SPORTS

With the opening of school, a hockey team was organized and under the management of Doris Adams the girls beat Irvington and Elmsford with the score of 3-2 each time.

In volleyball, besides the regular after-school activities, the girls joined with North Tarrytown to send a team to the County Center where girls from all schools took part in athletic events.

Kickball drew a large group of junior high school girls who competed keenly among themselves.

Softball, as always, was a very popular sport and was played at both playdays with the juniors and seniors representing W. I. at Croton and the lower classmen attending the one at Ossining.

Basketball was the most popular game, with many girls coming out after school and playing with an ardor and enthusiasm equaling that of the boys. W. I. and N. T. represented the Tarrytowns in this sport at Playday.

Tennis attracted many girls who practiced faithfully during and after school. They held games with Irvington, Briarcliff, and Hastings.

Badminton was the second most popular indoor game. Everybody had fun trying to hit those unpredictable "birdies".

Archery was strictly for the enthusiasts as it is a noontime activity, but quite a few girls, under the management of Rosanne Weeks, turned out to try their skill with the bow and arrow.

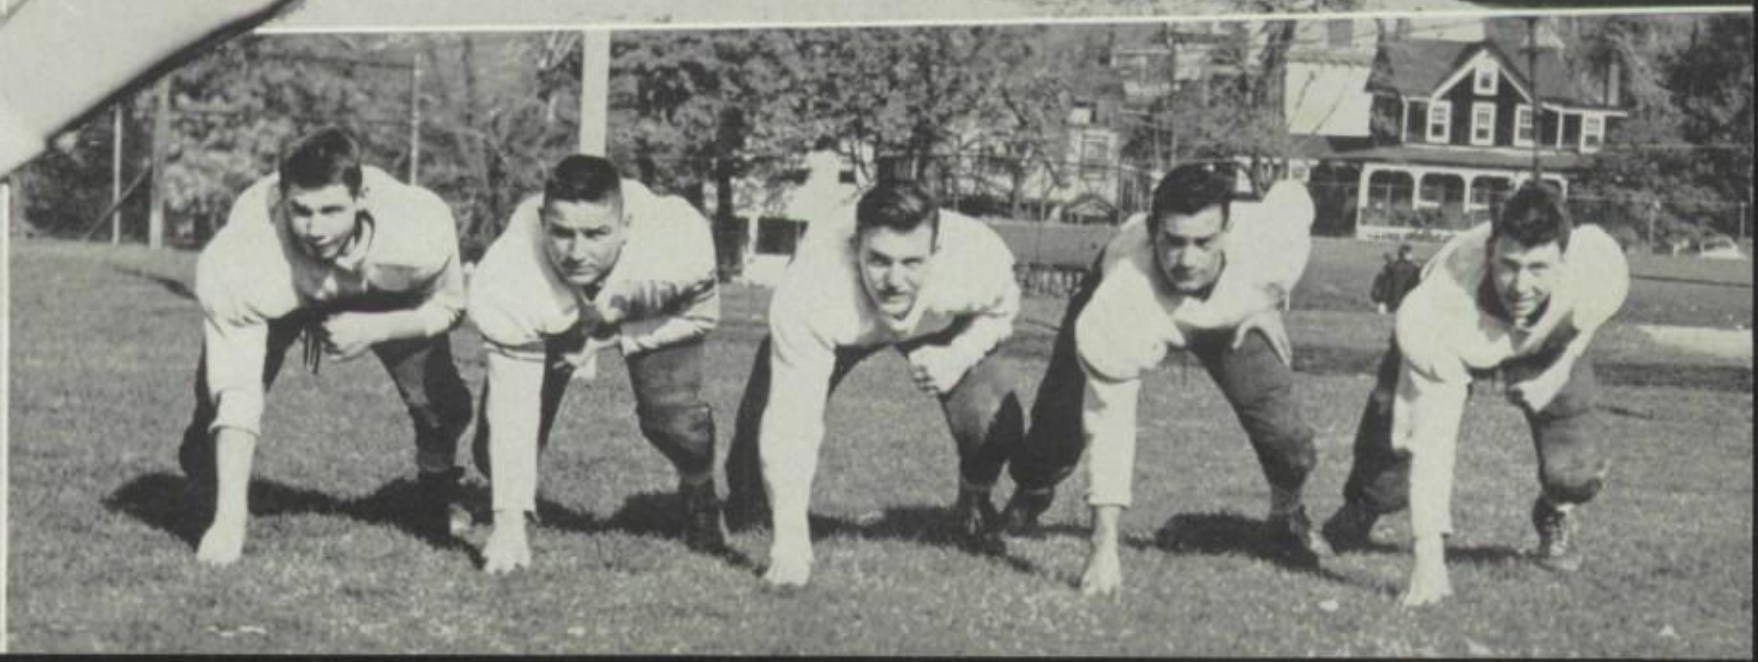

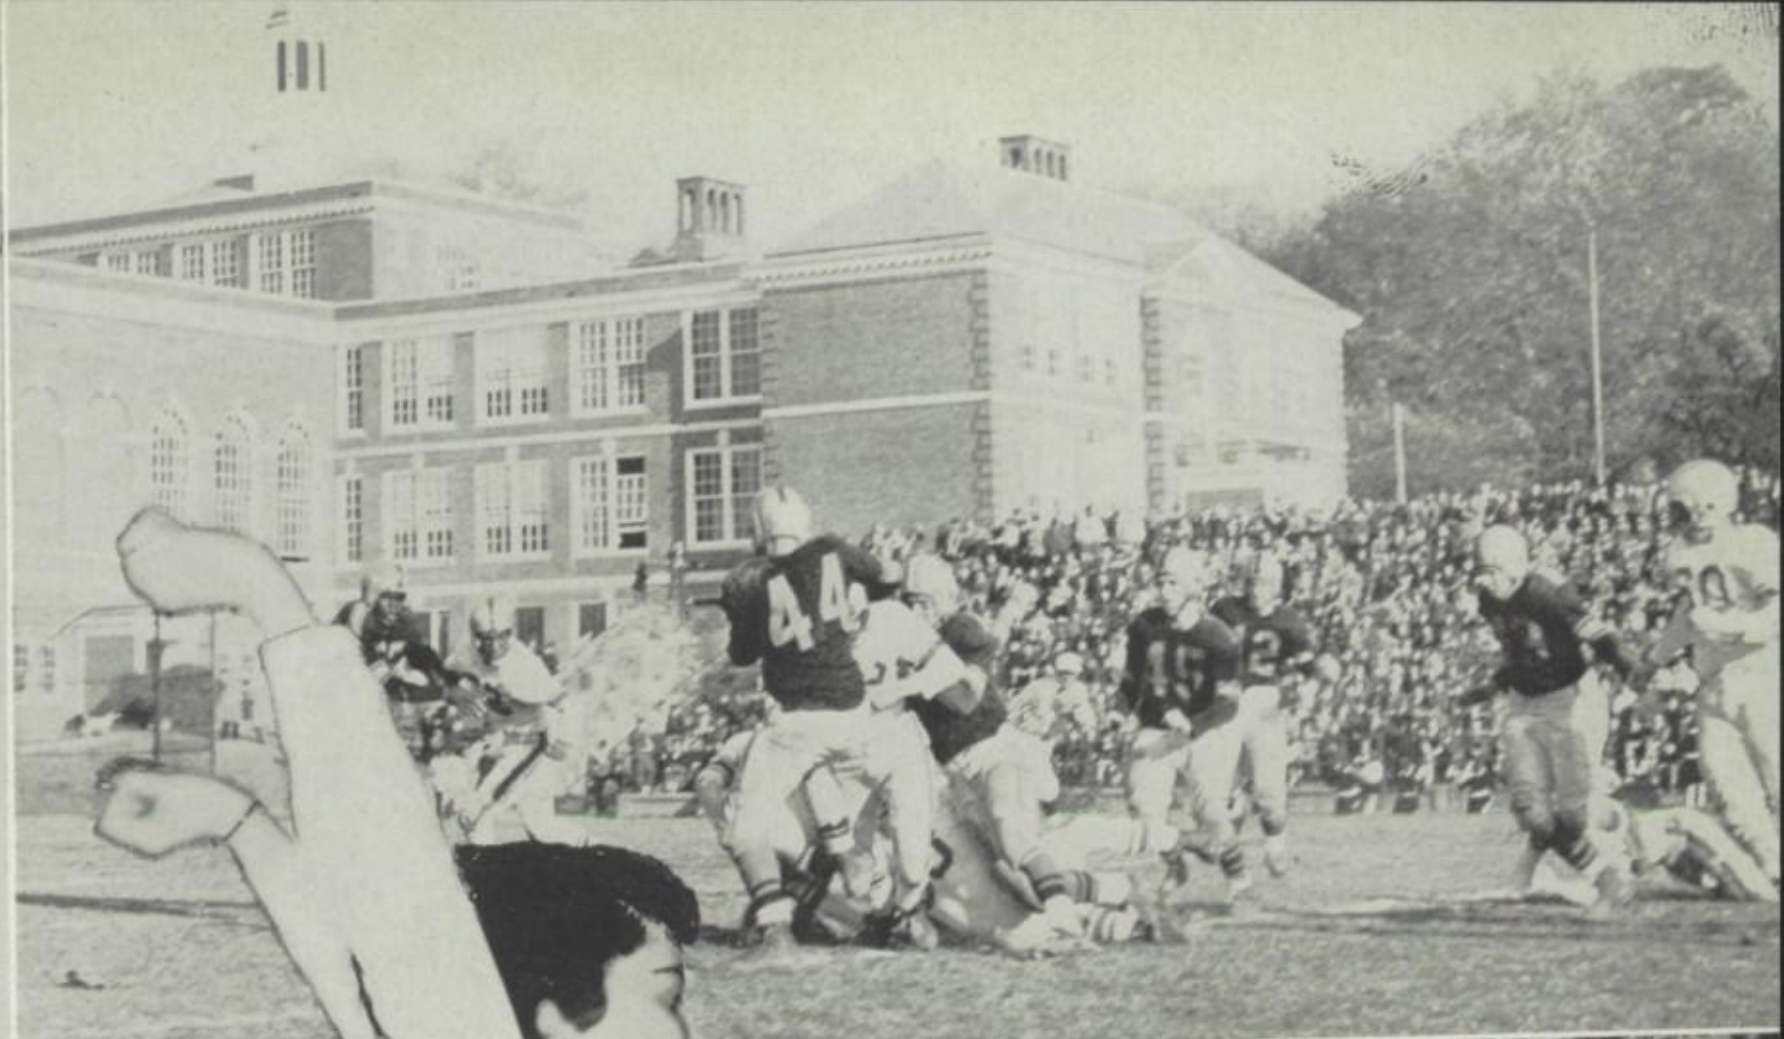

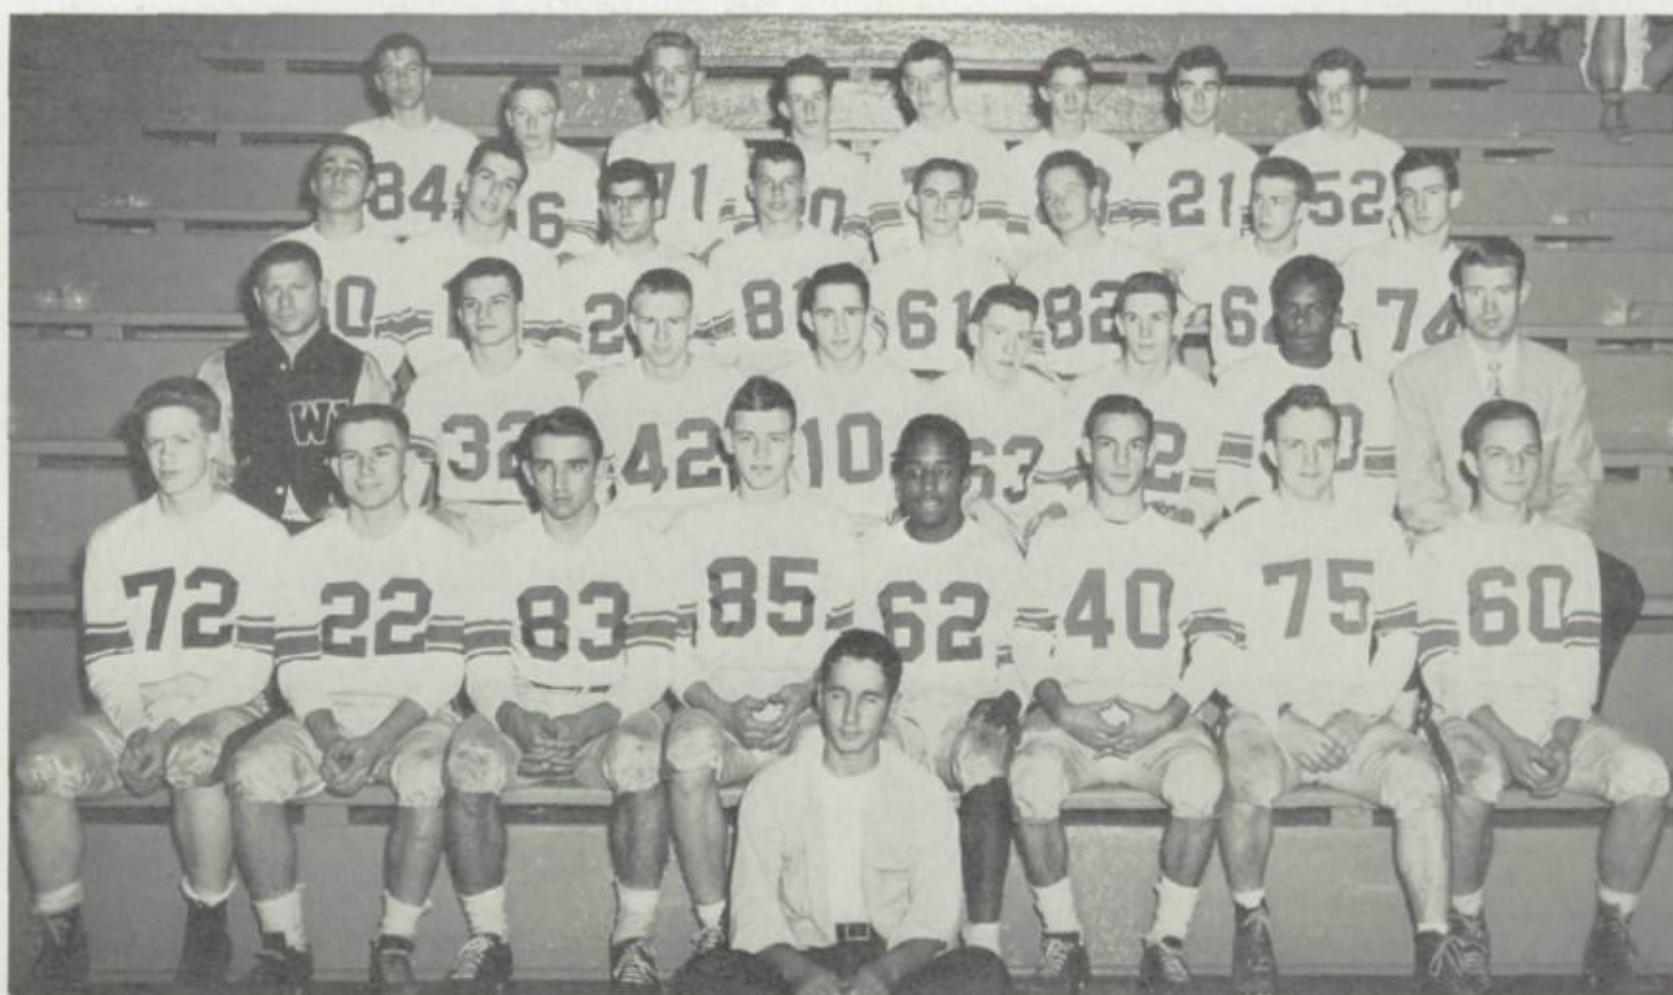

Cheerleaders

Who will ever forget those spirited pep rallies that rocked the gym and the fine performances of the cheerleaders at the games? Urging W. I. on to victory the squad, led by Ann Blasi and Joyce Cole, has done more than its share to support the team. The others are G. Erickson, H. Reilly, H. Kaps, B. Rae, F. Johnson, L. Hall, M. Manna, J. Kunkler, J. Saberski, C. Cormier, P. Engle, and R. Taylor.

THANKS...

The Alhambra staff would first like to thank Miss Gates, without whom this book would not have been possible, White Studio and Jahn and Ollier Engraving Company for the services rendered, Mr. Caivano and Miss Dawson for their cooperation, and those students who voluntarily took pictures for us.

As a class, we offer our sincerest thanks to Miss Hahn who devoted so much time to us as class advisor, and every member of the faculty and staff, all of whom at one time or another went beyond the "call of duty" to help us with our problems, studies, and every imaginable situation.

We may often seem ungrateful and unappreciative of all that has been done for us, but deep in our hearts we are thankful and respect and admire these teachers who have stood up so well under the stress and strain of all the trying, impossible conditions that we've done our best to create these past six years. Thank you again.
